

I prefer XM radio over traditional radio. XM Radio provides listeners the opportunity to listen to news such as CNN, FOX, etc without having to remain home for the current news. Traffic updates provides future information so if there is congestion on the freeway, I am able to change my route to get to my destination in a timely manner. I pay monthly for this service and it just seems to improve on the content. I believe the recent addition of local traffic reports is important because you can only get this information on FM at a specific point of the hour. Instead of looking for the top of the hour travel reports, XM Radio's traffic report provides this information at any time. I find it worthwhile and want National Association of Broadcasters to stop interfering in my service. After all, the National Association of Broadcasters does not pay my monthly subscription to XM, thus, programming XM offers should be up to the consumer.

Sincerely,

Christopher Hamlen
